Objective

By the end of this course, participants will be able to:

- Understand the principles and stages of Design Thinking in an educational context.
- Apply Design Thinking to create learner-centered solutions to real-world problems.
- Facilitate students' engagement in problem-based, project-based, and experiential learning.
- Use empathy to understand learners' needs and challenges.
- Foster a culture of innovation and experimentation in classrooms and schools.
- Integrate Design Thinking into curricula, lesson plans, and institutional strategies.

Audience

This course is ideal for:

- Teachers and lecturers at all levels.
- School principals, coordinators, and academic leaders.
- Instructional designers and curriculum developers.
- Education consultants and innovation coaches.
- Trainers and facilitators in educational and youth programs.
- Anyone looking to embed creativity and problem-solving into education.

Training Methodology

This highly interactive course combines expert-led discussions, group collaboration, case study analysis, and hands-on workshops. Participants will experience the Design Thinking process themselves and develop actionable solutions for challenges in their own educational contexts.

Summary

In a rapidly changing world, educators and learners alike need creative problem-solving skills to address complex challenges. Design Thinking offers a human-centered, iterative approach that fosters empathy, innovation, and practical solutions.

This course empowers educators and education leaders to use Design Thinking in curriculum design, instructional practice, and school improvement initiatives. Participants will learn how to engage learners in solving authentic problems while building critical thinking, collaboration, and creativity.
