Upon completion of this course, participants will be able to:

- Understand various methods of dispute resolution.
- Develop your negotiation techniques to achieve a positive outcome.
- Mediate and suggest mutually beneficial resolutions.
- Assess effective conflict reduction and resolution methods.
- Utilise negotiation techniques to avoid issues further down the line.
- Evaluate the potential risks and problem areas within contracts to mitigate problems.
- Lead constructive discussions to create effective journey maps for the future.
- Resolve problems using effective communication skills before taking formal action.
- Understand biases and barriers that may prevent both parties from meeting their contractual obligations.

Audience

This course is designed for anyone who must negotiate a contractual agreement or make changes to avoid a breakdown in the organisation-to-client relationship. It would be most beneficial for:

- Business Owners
- Directors
- Legal Professionals
- HR Personnel
- Account Managers
- Financial Directors
- Sales Managers
- Operations Directors
- Operations Managers

Training Methodology

This course uses various adult learning methods to aid full understanding and comprehension. Participants will view various versions of contracts and conduct group discussions to determine how agreements should work. They will participate in role-playing exercises to develop strong communication and negotiation techniques and study formal negotiation routes via real-world case studies.

Participants will then review their own organisations and discuss ways to improve communication or include a goal of continuous improvement and service development in future agreements that will benefit both parties.

Summary

Across any business, both parties will always have contractual obligations and agreements that must be met. While these will be initially agreed upon, circumstances may arise that may mean one party cannot meet these obligations.

Unfortunately, this could lead to disputes and even legal action should the relationship between the parties break down. When this situation occurs, it's important to understand where you and your company stand regarding negotiating a new, more mutually beneficial contract or how to move forward for a more formal resolution. Dispute resolution could take the form of arbitration or mediation, and it's important to understand both of these concepts and their processes to make them beneficial. It's also essential to distinguish between the theory and what happens in practice and upskill in your personal negotiation and communication techniques to allow for the best possible outcome.
