

Public Relations and Advanced Media Skills

Duration: 5 Days

Language: en

Course Code: IND11-106

Objective

Upon completion of this course, participants will be able to:

- Understand the importance of managing public relations and obtaining advanced media skills within the modern world.
- Explore the role and responsibilities of PR within different organisation sectors – finance, corporate, public, and non-profit.
- Examine the contribution of theory when planning and creating PR campaigns.
- Discuss current organisational standing and set goals, objectives, and expectations for expanding through public relations.
- Develop methods and programmes for effective relationship building.
- Manage behaviours, attitudes, and reputations relating to the organisation.

Audience

This course is designed for anyone responsible for managing PR and media. It would be most beneficial for:

- PR Personnel
- Sales Directors
- Marketing Directors
- Community Engagement Managers
- Business Owners
- Brand Managers
- Media Relations Representatives

Training Methodology

This course uses a variety of adult learning styles to aid full understanding and comprehension. Participants will review videos of professional conferences and TV interviews to highlight key communication methods and skills.

Participants will engage in a range of learning exercises and methods to encourage a full development of knowledge in relation to the taught content. They will use the equipment provided to partake in presentations, case studies, video materials, group discussions, and activities. These will ensure they are granted a full opportunity to align their knowledge with new skills.

Summary

Society has relied on the media for years to promote particular messages, products, or services. Media use has become more necessary as technology has developed, and there is a much stronger demand for these outlets. Media methods have changed with the transition to digital platforms, but the original principles remain.

Maintaining positive public relations is absolutely crucial for an organisation. To remain successful, developing a positive relationship with consumers is necessary to ensure brand loyalty. To engage with their target audience, organisations utilise media platforms to communicate and promote certain intentions. Each type of media source has its own benefits and limitations, so an organisation needs to explore these options and conclude what would be most suitable to meet its goals.

Public relations relies heavily on communicating and controlling its audience through various techniques and skills. For effective engagement, those involved must be highly competent at communicating in a written, verbal, and nonverbal way. There also needs to be a strong focus on analysing the target audience to gauge their reactions as content is released and understand what adjustments need to be made to areas of the organisation.

Course Content & Outline

Section 1: Fundamentals of Public Relations

- Defining the term 'public relations.'
- Exploring what internal and external factors influence a PR campaign.
- Describing the roles and responsibilities of different PR professionals.
- Understanding the Big Picture – innovation, planning, strategising, and implementation.
- Scenarios where PR may need to be used.
- Assessing the vitality of creating an online presence for the organisation.

Section 2: Public Relations and Media

- Identifying the different media types, their ideal purposes, benefits and limitations.
- Building a positive relationship with the media.
- Navigating media in times of crisis to preserve public image.
- Methods and techniques to develop a positive reputation within the media.
- Partaking in live interviews, press conferences and press releases.

Section 3: Skills and Responsibilities

- Observing key characteristics of dynamic public speakers.
- Understanding internal and external spheres and forming a corporate image.
- The importance of thorough preparation.
- Analysing the target audience and selecting key topics in relation to their key interests or values.
- Utilising different methods of communication – verbal and body language.
- Ensuring written content is cohesive and efficiently formatted.

Section 4: PR Promotional Role

- Driving home important messages with a strong and inviting tone of voice.
- Assessing the decision-making process of consumers and how they interact with the organisation.
- Managing corporate community involvement.
- Different methods of marketing PR.
- Arranging sponsorships and promotions.

Section 5: Social Media

- Analysing the interaction of traditional media and social media.
- Establishing a social media identity to reflect the organisation's image.
- Open communication with consumers and direct building of positive rapport.
- Evaluating online trends and how the organisation can utilise them for personal promotion.

Certificate Description

Upon successful completion of this training course, delegates will be awarded a Holistique Training Certificate of Completion. For those who attend and complete the online training course, a Holistique

Training e-Certificate will be provided.

Holistique Training Certificates are accredited by the British Assessment Council (BAC) and The CPD Certification Service (CPD), and are certified under ISO 9001, ISO 21001, and ISO 29993 standards.

CPD credits for this course are granted by our Certificates and will be reflected on the Holistique Training Certificate of Completion. In accordance with the standards of The CPD Certification Service, one CPD credit is awarded per hour of course attendance. A maximum of 50 CPD credits can be claimed for any single course we currently offer.

Categories

Customer Service & Public Relations (PR), Media and Marketing, Sales & Marketing

Tags

Communications , Social Media , PR , Public Relations , marketing , SM

Related Articles

A photograph showing a group of business professionals in a meeting room. In the foreground, a camera operator is visible, holding a professional video camera on a tripod. The background shows several people in business attire sitting around a table, engaged in a meeting.

Skills The Best Media Relations Professionals Possess in 2023

Skills The Best Media Relations Professionals Possess in 2024

Navigate the intricate realm of media relations with finesse! Learn the blend of technical, soft, and hard skills that propel professionals toward excellence. From writing prowess to crisis management, discover how to build relationships, shape perceptions, and thrive in the dynamic landscape of media and PR.

YouTube Video

https://www.youtube.com/embed/_m8sRzwzWeo?si=7GizpHS9z78-0CkD