- Journalists and media consultants.
- Anyone involved in global outreach or public affairs.

Training Methodology

This course is interactive and practical. Participants will take part in group discussions, real-world case studies, hands-on exercises, role-plays, and media analysis. Trainers will guide learners through step-by-step strategies, helping them apply each concept to their work. Peer learning and feedback are key parts of the process.

Summary

In today's fast-changing world, diplomacy is no longer limited to closed rooms or political leaders. It's now about connecting directly with people, sharing stories that matter, and building trust across borders. Contemporary public diplomacy helps governments, organizations, and professionals communicate clearly, build relationships, and create positive impact.

This course focuses on practical skills. You'll learn how to use digital tools, design creative campaigns, and connect with different audiences—from citizens to international partners. It also explores how a country's image can affect trade, tourism, and global influence. By the end of the course, you'll have real strategies to use in your field and the confidence to lead public communication efforts with purpose and clarity.
