Objective

By the end of this course, participants will be able to:

- Understand the types and signs of eating disorders.
- Discuss the physical and psychological impact of eating disorders.
- Identify ethical and professional guidelines in treatment.
- Apply evidence-based treatment models like CBT and DBT.
- Build patient-centered care plans for long-term recovery.
- Prepare for the CEDS certification exam.

Audience

This training is ideal for:

- Mental health counselors.
- Clinical psychologists and psychotherapists.
- Dietitians and nutritionists.
- Social workers and case managers.
- Nurses and healthcare professionals working in behavioral health.
- Anyone planning to specialize in eating disorder recovery.

Training Methodology

Participants will learn through a structured blend of instructor-led sessions that include clinical visuals and real-world examples, helping them grasp key concepts with clarity. The training incorporates case studies based on actual eating disorder scenarios to provide practical insights into assessment and intervention. Participants will also engage in guided simulations of therapeutic techniques to build confidence and clinical skill. To support individual progress, self-assessment quizzes and certification preparation tools are included. Additionally, group discussions will create space for collaborative learning and exploration of common patient care challenges in the field of eating disorder treatment.

Summary

This course is designed to help professionals become certified specialists in treating eating disorders. It covers the essential skills and knowledge needed to support individuals with conditions such as anorexia, bulimia, binge eating disorder, and other related issues. Participants will explore how to assess, diagnose, and treat patients using evidence-based therapeutic approaches while considering cultural, psychological, and physical aspects.

By completing this training, learners will be well-prepared to pursue the Certified Eating Disorder Specialist (CEDS) credential and confidently work in diverse clinical or counseling settings.
